

My fear is that he will wear his hair like a bear.

The ref fell when the mean men beat him in the league.

Wash that mud off the hood of our car.

Do you have some excess cash for a tip, Jim?

He wore a cape and a hat in the rain at the lake.

The shag rug in this room is so lush.

When do you need the cash?

The man was in pain when his leg hit the rake.

When can you join them?

You'll need to mash them up more, Jan.

I wish you'd call me when you get here.

She laid back on the mat and taped the rap.

There's no need to rush, Jack.

Can someone wash this off the rug?

I could hear the noise of the boy's voice.

I put in the coin and got a toy.

What a hoax this was.

I could exhale after the exam.

He fell into the seat and read the lease.

When you sit there and gape and gawk at someone, they may leave.

I was lax on the tax on the box.

Can you leave a note for me with someone there at the gate?

She would not budge on the ledge of the cage.

Someone who saw it said there's a lot of gore at the scene.

The judge owns a lodge on the ridge.

Bake some hash with fish, and I will wash the dish.

If you do goof up here somehow, you will cook your own goose.

I hate that he paid for the sack and pail for my sake.

I don't want to rush but I must dash to the bash.
