

| |
|---|
| Final Consonant Practice -SHAL, -TION |
| It is crucial that we call the marshal. |
| His facial features were unusual. |
| Fourth grade science covers glacial movement. |
| The artificial sweetener did not help. |
| It will be beneficial to discuss racial profiling. |
| She is partial to casual dress. |
| The nuptials were very special. |
| His presidential speech was pretty substantial. |
| There was quite a bit of circumstantial evidence. |
| This residential area requires a financial sacrifice. |
| The pay differential was substantial. |
| The marshal had a facial scar. |
| |
| The omission was a serious infraction. |
| He gave instruction on his invention. |
| The occasion was full of emotion. |
| The inscription was on the inside of the contraption. |
| My perception was true from the inception. |
| The injunction was granted after the sanction. |
| I have an aversion to infection. |
| Her compulsion was the focus of this edition. |
| You have the option if you have the gumption. |
| The foundation is education. |
| Repetition is the key to validation. |
| The delegation appreciated the accommodation. |
| Navigation is impossible after intoxication. |
| The beautician put foundation on the musician. |
| A dissertation is part of graduate education. |
| She had a premonition about his incarceration. |
| He felt no compunction after his eruption. |
| |